STUDENT SATISFACTION SURVEY ON TEACHING LEARNING PROCESS

(Academic year 2023-24)

A Student Satisfaction Survey on the Teaching-Learning Process provides valuable insights into the effectiveness of educational practices from the perspective of students. The summary of such a survey typically includes the following key points:

- Clearly defined objectives of the survey, outlining the specific aspects of the teaching-learning process under consideration.
- Explanation of the survey methodology, including the type of questions asked, survey distribution, and data collection methods.
- Highlights of the major findings from the survey, emphasizing both positive aspects and areas for improvement.
- Presentation of overall satisfaction levels expressed by students regarding the teaching-learning process.
- Identification and discussion of aspects of the teaching-learning process that received positive feedback, showcasing strengths and successful practices.
- Recognition and analysis of specific areas where students expressed dissatisfaction or suggested improvements in the teaching-learning process.
- Summary of feedback related to faculty effectiveness, communication, engagement, and other factors influencing the student experience.
- Evaluation of the curriculum based on student feedback, addressing relevance, clarity, and alignment with learning objectives.
- Insights into the satisfaction levels regarding the integration of technology in the teaching-learning process. Examination of support services such as counseling, tutoring, and academic resources, and feedback on their effectiveness.
- If applicable, a comparison with previous surveys to track changes in satisfaction levels and identify trends.
- Recommendations for actionable steps and improvements based on the survey findings, providing a roadmap for enhancing the teaching-learning experience.
- Plans for communicating the survey results to faculty, administrators, and other stakeholders, fostering transparency and accountability.
